FROM FR. JIM

What a marvelous Triduum celebration of Holy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter. We celebrated the gift of the Eucharist on Thursday evening with procession and Adoration until eleven that evening. Fr. Chris presided and washed the feet of fifteen. We had twelve scheduled, but three others came forward spontaneously. Fr. Chris commented that while it takes humility to wash feet, he has come to realize that it takes even more humility to have your feet washed! On Friday, it is so inspiring to watch the faithful come forward to reverence the cross with love and sorrow!

The Vigil was a glorious celebration of the new life of Baptism! We baptized sixteen adults and children. The adults and older children began in their purple garments. After their Baptisms, they changed into their white garments and processed in to the applause of the congregation! The music was outstanding. Mike Liderbach sang the Exultet in the church lit only by the people's candles. Mike has such a prayerful voice. He helps us pray. Gene Johnson once again touched us with his Easter tradition, "He's Alive!" The choir ended the Mass with a powerful rendition of Handel's "Messiah." Thanks to all the music ministers. Thanks, too, to Lisa Grady, Chris Gilkey, Connie DeBruler, and their college-age families for decorating the church for Easter. Thank you, Robben Florist for all the flowers. Easter dawned glorious! It was great to see people dressed up, and the church filled for all our Masses. Jesus lives and reigns! Alleluiah!

Join us in O'Connor Hall on Wednesday, April 19
 5:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m.
We hope to see everyone there!!!

FR. BEN'S COLUMN

"Our offenses and sins weigh us down, and we are wasting away because of them. How then can we live?" Ezekiel 33:10

When I was in college, I read an article in a psychology journal in which the author said that research showed Catholics were generally more psychologically well-balanced than the general population. Generally, Catholics, the article stated, were less likely to seek or to need psychotherapy or counselling. The author went on to say that because of our sacramental system, in particular, our consistent and normative confession of sins and faults, Catholics had a tendency to face their demons and receive guidance on a regular basis. The fact that Confession required reflection, self-examination, acknowledgement of fault, a firm intention to try to do better and change our behavior, led to dealing with our interior issues. Dealing with our interior issues, naturally, led to changing our behavior. The frequent use of the Sacrament of Reconciliation, with a deep self-reflection, a recognition of sins and admission of faults, an examination of our intentions and actions, with an intention to live a better life, meant that Catholics were more inclined to live reflective lives, and adjust interior and exterior behavior for the better. This sacramental system guided our human nature, gave us purpose, and formed our way of life leading to a more reflective, purpose-directed, and constantly evaluated way of living. Catholics purged their souls, hearts, and minds and had a greater sense of being freed from the festering bonds of sin. Confession moved us from the mediocrity of settling to the purposeful life which was worth living. Consequently, a more well-adjusted psychologically healthy person resulted. I'm pretty sure that as Catholics have fallen away from the frequent use of Confession, the number seeking counselling and psychotherapy has increased. Sad really, when God said through the Prophet Isaiah: Why pay for what is freely available, come to the water and drink (Is 55:1-2).

All of this is no surprise to us as we believe that we are not simply a physical being, but a spiritual and material being made up of body, soul, and spirit. The body and the soul are created to live in harmony with each other and the soul "informs," or directs, the body, heart, and mind. In the Garden of Eden, this harmony between body and soul was perfect, but after the Fall, that harmony was broken. What was once easy and natural, became difficult. Sin, the turning away from God and therefore turning away from God's love, grace, light, and our very purpose in life and destiny, weighs us down and crushes us beneath its terrible weight. Sin never seems heavy when we are being tempted to commit it, but it certainly drags us down when it festers in our hearts and souls after we have given into it.

The human soul, the human heart, is made to be loved by God and to love God. Without this love, cut off from this love, it can never find its completion, it can only fester and waste away. It becomes resentful, bitter, moody, anxious, demoralized, and lost. This is not what God wants for us and so God, a merciful Father, reaches out from heaven and touches our lives so that we might live again as He intended. God does this through His Divine Son, who is God's Divine Mercy. One of the sacraments of God's mercy is Confession which restores what is lost and crushed by sin – God's life of love and grace. In Confession, God reaches out from heaven and restores us to life. He does this freely – that is mercy – the free compassion and gift from God.

In his book "Jesus of Nazareth: Holy Week" the late Pope Benedict XVI, God rest His gentle soul, puts Confession within the context of Jesus washing the feet of His disciples. From the earliest times, the Church understood that before we entered the Eucharist, we needed to confess our faults/sin. In the Sacrament of Baptism, we are washed clean and are made righteous (restored to God). But we fail to maintain this righteousness so occasionally we need to be cleansed, but not completely, only our feet. We did not need to be Baptized again but we did need to be made righteous, to be made whole. Pope Benedict states: "The point is this: guilt must not be allowed to fester in the silence of the soul, poisoning it from within. It needs to be confessed. Through confession we bring it to the light, we place it within Christ's purifying love. In confession the Lord washes our soiled feet and over again prepares us for the table of His fellowship" (p. 74). In fact, Confession allows us to live again free of the poison and crushing weight of sin pressing us down.

Mercy is a gift of compassion, forgiveness, and reconciliation – it is not deserved but freely given and freely taken. In the Merchant of Venice, Shakespeare called it "dew from heaven" when Portia said: "The quality of mercy is not strained; It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven upon the place beneath. It is twice blessed; It blesseth him that gives and him that takes: It is an attribute of God Himself (Merchant of Venice Act IV, Scene I).

Mercy is a gift from God to us. It is a sign of a great soul when you see a person being merciful to others. Mercy is a "dew from heaven" that we can share with others.
